A BROADS-EYE VIEW REPRINT THE NORFOLK BROADS THROUGH AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY

Mike Page

How better to appreciate the unique landscape of the Norfolk Broads than from the air? In this superb new book over a hundred bird's-eye views of this unique corner of England will delight both those who know the area well and the region's many million visitors.

As Roy Snelling says in his foreword 'This is a superb collection of superb aerial photographs. I am sure it will be treasured by all of us who live here, and all who have ever visited. Broadland is such a beautiful place and yet many of us who have lived in East Anglia all our lives will not have seen some of the sites shown here as they are inaccessible on foot or by boat. I am sure this book will find its way on to the bookshelves of lovers of Broadland all over the world.'

Author, photographer and pilot, Mike Page, is already well-known for his films of the East Anglian countryside. Each photograph is accompanied by a description of the scene but the photography is the undoubted star of the book: stunning views of a truly fascinating landscape.

Mike Page was born in Gorleston in 1940 and started his working life as a boat-builder; progressing to motor and marine engineering in the late 1960s. In 1973 he started his own garage business in Strumpshaw in partnership with his wife Gillian. Now partly retired, and with his son Martin running the business, Mike has more time to pursue his main interests of flying and photography. He now concentrates on building up his image library of aerial and wildlife photographs taken throughout Norfolk and Suffolk. Mike is a regular contributor to several local newspapers and his images can also be seen in many books and magazines.
