

TONY BEARD'S DEVON QUIZ BOOK

'Well blew me down – tha's sommut I didn' know!'

If you think you know the difference between a drishal and a dashel, what you'd do with a bulhaggle, and can name four Devon places beginning with 'Wool', then maybe you won't need this book. But if you love a quiz, and think you know a thing or two about Devon, then this is just the book for you. 'The general idea is to whet appetites to find out more about the county we live in,' says Tony, whose passion for collecting thousands of snippets over his many years as performer and broadcaster shines out from these testing pages.

From local literature and dialect delights to farming, fishing and famous Devonians, this Devon examination is designed to bring encouraging results all round. While some questions will demand a little extra thought, and most are designed to increase our knowledge of the county, the emphasis is on having fun.

A perfect stocking filler!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Tony Beard is a true Devonian, known universally as 'The Wag from Widecombe'. Born and bred in Widecombe-in-the-Moor he spent many years working on his family farm, a genuine 'son of the soil', now retired. His unmistakable Devonshire voice has kept him among the most popular of the county's broadcasters on BBC Radio Devon. The 'Tony Beard Sunday Request Show' and his 'My Dartmoor Diary', in which he talks about the many interesting facets of Dartmoor's natural history, archaeology and history, make him one of that station's favourite presenters. A founder member of The Widecombe & District Local History Group, Tony is always much in demand as a speaker on Dartmoor, its history and legends.

He is a past-President of the Devonshire Association.

Tony lives in Widecombe-in-the-Moor.
