

NORFOLK IN THE SECOND WORLD WAR

A PICTORIAL HISTORY 1939-45

Neil R. Storey

The Second World War had a profound and unprecedented effect on the people of Norfolk. During that conflict thousands of local men and women 'did their bit' in the armed forces while many of those they left behind were part of a most remarkable endeavour. These men and women on the Home Front, often facing extreme danger; took part in vast array of occupations, and enlisted in volunteer and auxiliary forces as part of the war effort.

This book is a compelling record of their stories, much of it in their own words, and from documents, books, newspapers and periodicals written or published during the war or in its immediate aftermath.

As well as being fascinating in its own right, the book will prove to be a useful starting point or reference work for researchers over the years to come, and some small tribute to all those from the county of Norfolk who gave so much during the conflict.

Profusely illustrated with almost 250 photographs and documents, many previously unseen, taken from the unique and nationally-respected archive assembled by the author; this important book will appeal to all those with an interest in Norfolk's military past and in family history.
