

BANFF STRIKE WING AT WAR

A UNIQUE PHOTOGRAPHIC HISTORY

Les Taylor

REPRINTED

The role of Banff Strike Wing can be summed up in a single word – steel. Without steel, no nation in the twentieth century could sustain a war for any period of time. Tanks, ships, submarines, aircraft engines – all the weapons and tools of modern war required steel in vast quantities. For Nazi Germany this meant transporting raw materials from Sweden to the blast furnaces and steel mills of the Ruhr in a fleet of merchant ships. They had to be stopped.

Two Coastal Command airfields were available in north-east Scotland – Banff and Dallachy – providing ideal bases for two new strike wings to operate from. During September and October 1944, the Beaufighters and Mosquitos began to take up residence at these bases. Four or five squadrons were based at Banff at any one time, with two or three at the smaller satellite of Dallachy, near Buckie. Their task was a simple one – sink the iron ore-carrying ships, and cut off the only remaining supply of this strategic raw material to Germany.

This book is a photographic history of RAF Banff Strike Wing, 1944–1945, comprising 175 photographs, together with rare documents and other artefacts, the vast majority of which have never previously been published. The collection itself is unique in that the photographs were all donated to the author by veterans of Banff Strike Wing during the time the author was secretary of the RAF Banff Strike Wing Memorial Trust from 1987–1992. The extensive correspondence with these veterans that this entailed has allowed the author to write the narrative from a unique and personal perspective.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Les Taylor has been closely involved with the history of Banff Strike Wing for over 25 years.

He founded a project to build a granite memorial to the wing which was unveiled in 1990.

This helped him establish contacts with veterans around the world – and to be able to write Banff Strike Wing at War with the testimonies of those who were actually there.

Les Taylor lives in northern Aberdeenshire with his wife and two children.

HALSGROVE CATALOGUE

The full Halsgrove catalogue is available free or visit www.halsgrove.com for regional and category listings of available titles.

Halsgrove Publishing
Halsgrove House,
Ryelands Business Park,
Bagley Road, Wellington,
Somerset TA21 9PZ
Tel: 01823 653777
Fax: 01823 216796
www.halsgrove.com e-mail: sales@halsgrove.com

HALSGROVE TITLE INFORMATION

Format: Hardback, 152 pages, 297x210mm including over 175 photographs
Price: £19.99
ISBN: 978 0 85704 072 5
Imprint: Halsgrove
Published: October 2010, reprinted October 2011

Great Books from your Local Bookseller

BANFF STRIKE WING AT WAR

The ultimate configuration of the anti-shipping version of the De Havilland Mosquito FBVI, that was unique to Banff Strike Wing and it's operations.

Christmas 1944. Airmen and NCOs bring wives and local girlfriends along to enjoy the feast.

Right: An enormous amount of rockets were required to keep the Mosquitoes of Banff Strike Wing in action.

Below: Giving some idea of the cramped confines inside the cockpit of a Beau-fighter

Example of a double-page spread.

BANFF STRIKE WING AT WAR

Not that far from Banff. Ship sinking near a German submarine in off command. The ship is a small merchant ship and is being attacked by a German submarine. The ship is sinking and the submarine is on the surface. The ship is a small merchant ship and is being attacked by a German submarine. The ship is sinking and the submarine is on the surface.

THE AIM

Not that far from Banff. Ship sinking near a German submarine in off command. The ship is a small merchant ship and is being attacked by a German submarine. The ship is sinking and the submarine is on the surface. The ship is a small merchant ship and is being attacked by a German submarine. The ship is sinking and the submarine is on the surface.

Towards the end of the war, German U-boats began to be encountered on the surface more frequently by Banff Strike Wing and were attacked without mercy.

An impromptu group photograph of 235 Squadron ground crews at Banff.