

THE JURASSIC COAST

from the sea

Steve Belasco

The Jurassic Coast was shaped by the sea, so what better way to view it than from wave level.

This unparalleled and beautiful book is packed with stunning photographs of the waters and coastline of Dorset and East Devon, captured from offshore by marine photographer and sailor Steve Belasco.

The 95-mile Jurassic Coast, stretching from Poole in the East to Exmouth in the west, spans some 185 million years of the Earth's history and is truly unique. Indeed, it is England's only natural World Heritage Site.

Whether viewing the dazzling chalk stacks of Old Harry Rocks in Dorset or the striking red sandstone of Ladram Bay in Devon, the view from seaward is simply unbeatable.

These glorious images document the coast as it lives, breathes and evolves in the twenty-first century, with all the natural, human and commercial interaction that entails.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Steve Belasco has been sailing the waters off the Devon and Dorset coast for twenty-five years and has been a Dorset-based photographer and production journalist for longer. He is a volunteer ambassador for the Jurassic Coast Trust, the charity that manages, teaches and promotes the coastline to the wider world.

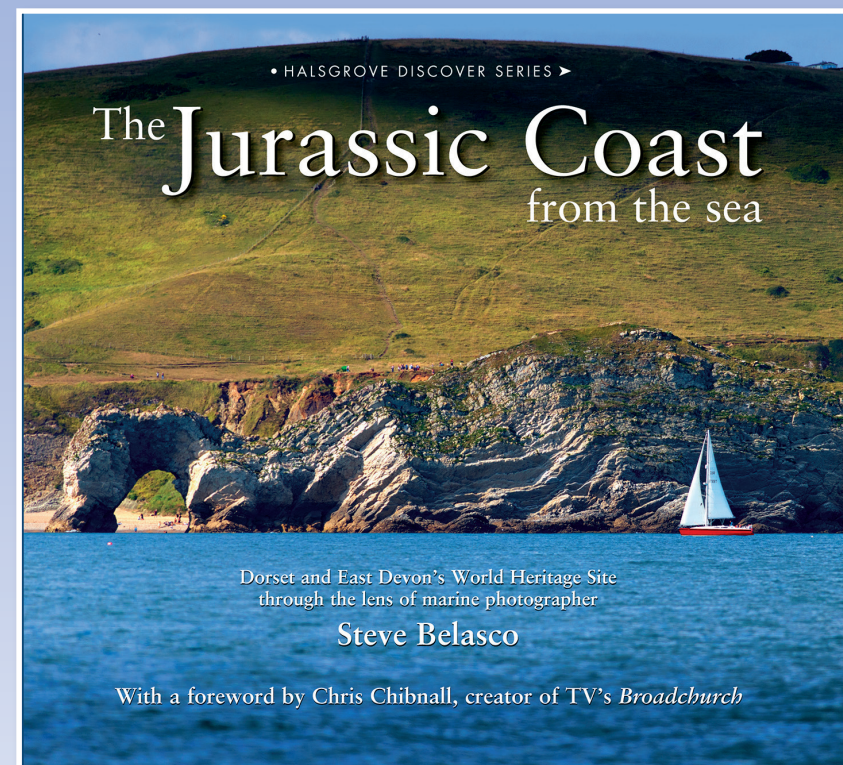

Steve lives with his wife and two sons in the village of Portesham, near the coast in West Dorset.
